

THE PEOPLE OF THE PEN.

O, the people of the pen,
The people of the pen—
The brightest of our women,
The bravest of our men;
On the picket-lines of progress
They are keeping watch and ward,
Where the reaper swings the sickle,
And the soldier wields the sword;
Their snowy scrolls are fluttering,
Like doves around the globe—
They're folding all the lands of God
Within one starry robe;
On all the bleak and sunless hills
They build the beacon fires,
And set the danger signals out
On all the tallest spires;
The fiery footed couriers
Of the lightning they have caught,
And made them message bearers
In the parliament of thought;
They're the mighty army moving,
And they muster thousands ten,
And pull the world behind them,
The people of the pen.

O, the people of the pen,
The people of the pen;
Wherever human foot has trod
Some strolling scribe has been.

THE FACT is, and you can stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of larger beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your corner correspondent. That German drink has struck hard, it is the second deluge.

"Yes, and the worst of this beer drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphors. "The midnight schooner" leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's disease."
